CEP – CANADA'S MEDIA UNION

From Pacific Press in Vancouver, to ATV in Cape Breton, there is only one effective, all-Canadian union for media workers.

Ask the men and women who already belong and they will tell you – the Communications, Energy and Paperworkers Union of Canada (CEP) is that union.

Justice on the job and service to our members and our community has made CEP the fastest-growing union in the print and media sectors. We represent more than 25,000 newspaper, broadcast, film and printing industry workers – a tight-knit community of media workers within the larger labour movement.

If you work in the media then we do what you do. We sell ads, answer phones, write columns, handle cameras, edit stories, anchor news, run presses, design websites, sew costumes and create special effects. We are foreign correspondents and drive-home radio announcers. We are IT workers and truck drivers. We work at new ethnic dailies and large book publishers, at Canada's broadcasters and in the burgeoning film and television production industry. We are strong and committed to fair treatment in every aspect of our workplace. Our strength means:

- We bargain first-rate contracts with wages, benefits and conditions second to none;
- We provide support to our members to make sure those contracts are lived up to;
- We help non-union workers to gain that same kind of representation; and
- We carry our fight for fairness beyond the workplace and into the corridors of power in Ottawa and provincial capitals so that progressive programs like Medicare and public pensions are protected.

DEMOCRATIC, STRONG, CANADIAN

CEP is Canada's union for media workers, but it is much more than that.

Our greatest strength is our diversity. We represent 150,000 Canadian workers in several key parts of the economy: energy, forestry, telecommunications, media and printing.

That means you are never alone in dealing with your employer. You have the collective support and strength of all CEP members behind you. The resources of the entire union are at your disposal in bargaining and in everyday dealings with your employer, giving you more power, more respect and more dignity in your relations with your boss.

That is what joining CEP can do for you!

AS A CEP MEMBER, YOU DECIDE!

Joining the union also means you control your own destiny.

- You decide what you need to have in your contract;
- You elect your own leadership from amongst yourselves;
- You establish your own rate of union dues; and,
- You run the national union through secret ballot elections and an open convention.

That's called democracy!

It's the union way – the Canadian way and, most of all, it's the CEP way.

And it is our way of inviting you to join the thousands of media workers who already belong. Contact us in confidence for more information.

MORE POWER
MORE DIGNITY
THAT'S CEP...
